

THE PLEDGE

AI that makes us more human, and safer.

The companies with the most reach have a duty that matches that power. This Pledge is a public commitment anyone can read, quote, and hold signers to. Soft ethics pages do not change behavior. Clear promises do.

WE PLEDGE

Our AI will make people more capable, not less necessary, and safer, not more exposed. We will design, deploy, and govern our systems so they expand human skill, opportunity, and creativity; we will keep pace with those who would abuse them; we will put AI capacity behind charity and causes so nobody is left behind; and we will answer for that commitment in public.

FIVE COMMITMENTS

01

Empower, do not displace

We build AI that adds to human judgment and craft. Where automation removes work, we invest in the people affected with clear paths to new skills and roles.

02

Defend people from bad actors

Security is a first-class product duty. We design against misuse, share threat knowledge that protects the public, and help people feel safer, not more exposed.

03

Invest where humans grow

We put real resources into education, tools, and causes that expand creativity, opportunity, and human development. Progress we fund should be progress people can feel.

04

Allocate capacity so nobody is left behind

We dedicate a meaningful share of our AI capacity (compute, talent, and tools) to charity and philanthropic efforts, so communities least served by AI still gain from it.

05

Lead in public

We publish what this Pledge means for our products, workforce, research, security, and the capacity we give to public-interest work. Once a year we report progress in plain language.

What signing means

- Named and public: company, senior sponsor, and date on goodcitizen.ai
- Annual light: a short public progress note within twelve months, then yearly, including capacity given
- Product-relevant: applies to AI built or deployed at scale, including security against misuse
- No empty virtue: no named sponsor or progress window means no listing

Stand behind people. Defend against bad actors. Leave nobody behind. Lead in public.
